

Claudia Rochefort, MD

Dr. Rochefort went to medical school at University of Sherbrooke and then completed her residency in Internal Medicine at McGill University. She recently concluded her fellowship in Infectious diseases at McGill University and is now pursuing a second fellowship in Medical Microbiology.

Her specific interests in Infectious diseases are Tropical Medicine and Global Health. She did a significant part of her training in Tropical Diseases at the JD MacLean Centre for Tropical Diseases and will complement her knowledge at the 2016 Gorgas course in Tropical Medicine in Peru.

In the near future, she will be working as a microbiologist and infectious diseases specialist in a community hospital and is also planning to incorporate a significant amount of her professional time in global healthcare.

SUBJECT MATTER EXPERT

Humanitarian Healthcare Provider Program

