

Francesca Luconi, PhD

Dr. Francesca Luconi is a researcher, educational consultant and instructional designer experienced in the design, implementation and evaluation of accredited professional training programs in health care. She has a strong inter-disciplinary academic background (i.e., social anthropology, educational psychology and continuing professional development), research skills and practical judgement for customizing training programs. Dr. Luconi is multi-lingual with extensive international research experience in Spanish-speaking countries. Her research interests include migrations, ethnic identity and stereotypes.

Her latest work include creating online learning environments to support learning and transfer to clinical practice, as well as development of tools to enhance knowledge-translation and self-directed learning for physicians and other healthcare professionals.

PLANNING COMMITTEE

Humanitarian Healthcare Provider Program

