

Stephane Borreman, MD, CCFP(EM)

Dr. Borreman is a physician with over 15 years of experience as a business consultant in healthcare. He graduated at McGill in Engineering and in Medicine before joining McKinsey where he served teams of senior executives in large corporations across the globe on strategy issues for a few years. He then completed training in Emergency Medicine and since practices clinical medicine at the McGill University Health Center hospitals.

Beside clinical medicine, he has continued to work closely with numerous healthcare organizations and McKinsey as a healthcare strategy and operations consultant for now over 10 years. As such, he has worked for clients in North America, Asia, and Europe.

His interests include clinical leadership, healthcare systems strategy, and digital health, including e-learning and simulation-based training.

PLANNING COMMITTEE

Humanitarian Healthcare Provider Program

